Session Goals

- To build a common language that can be used in our conversations.
- To feel more comfortable and equipped to have the tough conversations we want/need to have.
- To have a deeper sense of self-awareness.
What is the this session about?

Is

× A session in which vulnerability is needed.
× A session that meets people where they are.
× A session about all differences, not just race.

Isn’t

× A session on how to teach your black students.
× A session to decide who is “right” and who is “wrong”
× A session to hear a lecture or see a presentation.
Our process is easy

Define a term.

Give examples of the term.

Discuss a question about the term as a group.
Norms

- 3 Before Me
- Conversation-minded
- Seek to understand

Identity Wheel

Fill in each section of your Identity Wheel with a word that describes that part of your identity.
Think-Pair-Share

Consider one of the following:

- What is something you have in common?
- What is something you have different?
- What are the implications for this in our work at schools?
Privilege

A special:
× right,
× advantage,
× or immunity

Microaggression
So... who's the man in the relationship?

"You're not like the other Black people I know. You speak so well."

"Act more like a lady. Be a woman put back into your place."

"When I look at you, don't see color. Share our stories."

"Real men don't cry. Hug, please!"

"You're different from how I was taught. Nice girls don't do that."

"Your skin tone is so beautiful—it's not too dark."

"You're the whitest Black person I know."

"You're lucky to be black... so easy to get into college!" —old classmate

"You didn't let him pay?"
Microaggression

A term used for brief and commonplace:

- daily verbal,
- behavioural,
- or environmental indignities,

whether intentional or unintentional, that communicate:

- hostile,
- derogatory,
- or negative prejudicial

slights and insults toward any group, particularly culturally marginalized groups.
Where do microaggressions come from?
Racism

A system that reinforces the belief that one race is superior over another.

Although racism does of course occur in individual acts, these acts are part of a larger system that we all participate in.
“The idea of racial inferiority was created to justify unequal treatment; belief in racial inferiority is not what triggered unequal treatment...

...we first exploited people for their resources, not according to how they looked...”
The Good/Bad Binary

He’s not racist. He is a really nice guy.

The Good/Bad Binary

- Good/bad makes it impossible to talk about racism.
- Being told you are a “bad” person puts all your energy into denying instead of understanding.
  - I don’t see color.
  - I marched in the sixties.
  - I’m not racist, I’m from ____.
  - I went to a diverse school.
  - We adopted a child from ____.
  - Focusing on race is what divides us.
  - I grew up poor.

They ALL protect the STATUS Quo.

Therefore, nothing changes.
The Good/Bad Binary

While making racism bad seems like a positive change, we have to look at how this functions in practice. Within this paradigm, to suggest that I am racist is to deliver a deep moral blow—a kind of character assassination. Having received this blow, I must defend my character, and that is where all my energy will go—to deflecting the charge, rather than reflecting on my behavior. In this way, the good/bad binary makes it nearly impossible to talk to white people about racism, what it is, how it shapes all of us, and the inevitable ways that we are conditioned to participate in it.

“Racism is like murder: the concept exists, but someone has to commit it in order for it to happen.”
What’s your reaction to this quote?

“Most of us only teach our children not to admit to prejudice. A parent training a child not to say certain things that are overtly racist is teaching the child self-censorship rather than how to examine the deeply embedded racial messages we all absorb. Ideally, we would teach our children how to recognize and challenge prejudice, rather than deny it.”

<tr>
<td>Do learn all of your students' names and how to correctly pronounce their names as early in the school year as possible.</td>
<td>Don't make that the only thing you learn about your students.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Do recognize that all experiences are valid.</td>
<td>Don't tell someone what they felt or experienced. Encourage students to speak for themselves.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Do create a safe space for students to share their experiences, identity, and culture openly with their peers.</td>
<td>Don't tokenize or other*. Never ask your students to speak for the experiences of all students in their culture or identity group.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Do ask questions out of a place of caring and compassion.</td>
<td>Don't interrogate.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Do include diverse examples of scientists, musicians, politicians, athletes, writers, and activists as role models in your examples.</td>
<td>Don't only choose examples that reinforce stereotypes.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Do honor and affirm your students' culture(s) every day.</td>
<td>Don't recognize certain cultures only on special holidays or months of the year.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Do set an example of openness by sharing your background and cultural history.</td>
<td>Don't assume that students have the same background and cultural history as you.</td>

Consistently show your students that you believe they are ALL capable of achieving at high levels and that you are there to support them along the way.
