Focus on Registrants

- Domain name registrants are an integral part of the Domain Name System (DNS).

- The ICANN org has always helped addressing registrant inquiries.

- In 2017, added more work to further help registrants:
  - Become more informed participants of the DNS.
  - Understand their rights and obligations.
  - Understand how ICANN policies impact them.

- Use data and information from Global Support Center (GSC) and Compliance to help inform the work.

- Welcome input and suggestion from community to further current work.
Service and Information

To Summarize

The Global Support Center officially launched in June 2015.
- In response to the changing needs of the community.
- Provide a centralized point of contact for general inquiries, promote quality and a consistent user experience.
- Inquiries from Registrants & the general public are now logged and tracked by a centralized process, team and system.

Data gathered and lessons learned are now used to help drive Registrant Services activities and improvement initiatives.

A domain name registrant is a person or entity that holds the rights to a domain name. As a domain name registrant, you have certain rights and responsibilities. Your rights include access to information from your registrar regarding processes for registering, managing, transferring, renewing, and restoring your domain name registration. Your responsibilities include providing accurate contact information for publication in the WHOIS directory, promptly notifying your registrar of any changes to your contact information, and promptly responding to your registrar’s request for information relating to your domain name registration. This newly created web page helps you understand your rights and obligations, and manage your domain name registration.

If you have suggestions, or would like to submit an inquiry please contact ICANN’s Global Support Center.

Contractual compliance complaints can be submitted here.

Objective: Help registrars in their interactions with customers by providing relevant content written for registrants.

What: Content on ICANN policies and other topics relevant to registrants.

How Registrars Can Use This Material: As website content, online resources, customer service Q&A, FAQs, etc.
About ICANN: To reach another person on the Internet you have to type an address into your Internet browser -- a name or a number. That address has to be unique so computers know where to find each other. ICANN coordinates these unique identifiers to ensure that you get to where you want to get to on the Internet. As a domain name registrant, it’s important to educate yourself about your rights and responsibilities, the ICANN’s policies that govern certain aspects of your domain name registrations, and how you can best work with your Registrars.

About the WDRP: The WOIS Data Reminder Policy (WDRP) requires your registrar to send you an annual reminder to update your WHOIS information, which includes your contact information, if there are any changes. It's important that when you receive this reminder you review the information carefully and make any necessary corrections. Invalid or out of date information can result in you not receiving important notices from your registrar regarding expirations, renewals, transfers of your domain name, and could also result in suspension of the domain name.
