There was only one other person at the table who really did not know how best to make her role indispensable. She is 80% in a different role and only 20% librarian role (though not a degreed librarian she is doing way more than 20% librarian tasks). I spoke with her about the program we do here at Sharp HealthCare called the Health Information Ambassador. I offered to share more about it and also all my resources if she wanted to implement it at her hospital.
