Session Overview

- What is the CEFRL?
- DELF- Why so much talk about this?
- Keeping students engaged
- What organizations can support me?
The CEFR defines levels of language proficiency which help teachers and students to identify where students are in their learning and to measure their language development over time. The proficiency levels are defined as ‘can-do’ statements that range from beginner user A1 to near-native user C2 in five communicative types: writing, reading, listening, spoken production and spoken interaction. The CEFR generally proposes an action-oriented approach: language proficiency is described in terms of what students are able to do in the target language. 2. DELF
The DELF diplomas are awarded by the French Ministry of Education to prove the French-language skills of non-French candidates.

There are six independent diplomas, which correspond, respectively, to the six levels of the Council of Europe's Common European Framework of Reference for Languages (CEFRL).
